DETAILED ACTION

Numbering of the Claims

1. The claims presented at the end of the specification do not include claim numbers as required. Therefore, the first claim beginning with the phrase "The process and technique of using..." has been numbered by the examiner as claim #1 for the purpose of this Office action and the second claim beginning with the phrase "The use of machine or cast shoes on..." has been numbered by the examiner as claim #2 for the purpose of this Office action. Note that 37 CFR 1.126 requires the original numbering of the claims to be preserved throughout the prosecution. When claims are canceled, the remaining claims must not be renumbered. When new claims are presented, they must be numbered consecutively beginning with the number next following the highest numbered claims previously presented (whether entered or not) (e.g., any new claims should be consecutively numbered starting from 3).

Specification

2. Applicant is reminded of the proper content of an abstract of the disclosure.

A patent abstract is a concise statement of the technical disclosure of the patent and should include that which is new in the art to which the invention pertains. If the patent is of a basic nature, the entire technical disclosure may be new in the art, and the abstract should be directed to the entire disclosure. If the patent is in the nature of an improvement in an old apparatus, process, product, or composition, the abstract should include the technical disclosure of the improvement. In certain patents, particularly those for compounds and compositions, wherein the process for making and/or the use thereof are not obvious, the abstract should set forth a process for making and/or use thereof. If the new technical disclosure involves modifications or alternatives, the abstract should mention by way of example the preferred modification or alternative.

The abstract should not refer to purported merits or speculative applications of the invention and should not compare the invention with the prior art.

Where applicable, the abstract should include the following:

Art Unit: 1732

- (1) if a machine or apparatus, its organization and operation;
- (2) if an article, its method of making;
- (3) if a chemical compound, its identity and use;
- (4) if a mixture, its ingredients;
- (5) if a process, the steps.

Extensive mechanical and design details of apparatus should not be given.

In the instant case, the applicant should rewrite the abstract such that it does not refer to the purported merits of the invention and such that it does not compare the applicant's invention with the prior art. The examiner recommends that the applicant use the abstracts of U.S. Patent No. 5,484,236 (Gravier) and U.S. Patent No. 6,322,742 B1 (Bott) as a guide for rewriting the abstract in the instant application.

3. Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

4. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Art Unit: 1732

5. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

6. Claims 1 and 2 provides for the use of a horizontal core puller in a process and technique and the use of machined or cast shoes on the stripper/compaction head of a concrete products machine, respectively, but, since the claims do not set forth any steps involved in the method/process, it is unclear what method/process applicant is intending to encompass. A claim is indefinite where it merely recites a use without any active, positive steps delimiting how this use is actually practiced.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed recitation of a use, without setting forth any steps involved in the process, results in an improper definition of a process, i.e., results in a claim which is not a proper process claim under 35 U.S.C. 101. See for example Ex parte Dunki, 153 USPQ 678 (Bd.App. 1967) and Clinical Products, Ltd. v. Brenner, 255 F. Supp. 131, 149 USPQ 475 (D.D.C. 1966).

The claims in the instant application do not provide any positive method steps (e.g., steps that include an action such as pouring, providing, placing, etc.), and therefore the claims are considered "use" claims. Below is an example of a claim including positive method steps would be:

1. A method of forming a concrete block comprising the steps of:
 - providing a mold;
 - pouring concrete into the mold;
 - allowing the concrete in the mold to cure to form a concrete block; and
 - removing the concrete block from the mold.

The applicant should use this example claim as a guide to rewrite their claims in the instant application. In order to further assist the applicant in writing proper claims that are not considered "use" claims in the instant application, the examiner has included U.S. Patent No. 5,484,236 (Gravier) and U.S. Patent No. 6,322,742 B1 (Bott), which are directed to similar processes, for the applicant's review.

Because the examiner cannot determine what method/process the applicant is intending to encompass, the examiner cannot properly search the claims in the instant application. As such, claims 1 and 2 will not be treated on their merits in this Office action and the examiner has not presented a rejection over the prior art in this Office action.

Art Unit: 1732
